

PRESS RELEASE

New publishing house offers innovative subscription program of rarely performed and little-known repertoire

Respected German composer and pianist Sebastian Gabriel launched AURIO Music Publishing House. AURIO offers works by unknown composers and rarely performed pieces by well-known composers by subscription and on an individual basis. Conceived by Mr. Gabriel as the solution to time-consuming searches for rare works whilst doing such a search himself, the publishing house relieves musicians of searching for rarities, making the pieces available in ready-to-play sheet music.

Carefully edited scores for piano, violin, violoncello, clarinet, flute and classical guitar will be published monthly, in a choice of a noble print version or as a digital pdf download. The editions can include chamber music with arranged voices. Each score is enriched with explanations and audio recordings for orientation.

The editions have been designed for practicing, teaching and performing - for everyone who plays an instrument: amateur musicians, teachers, students and professional musicians.

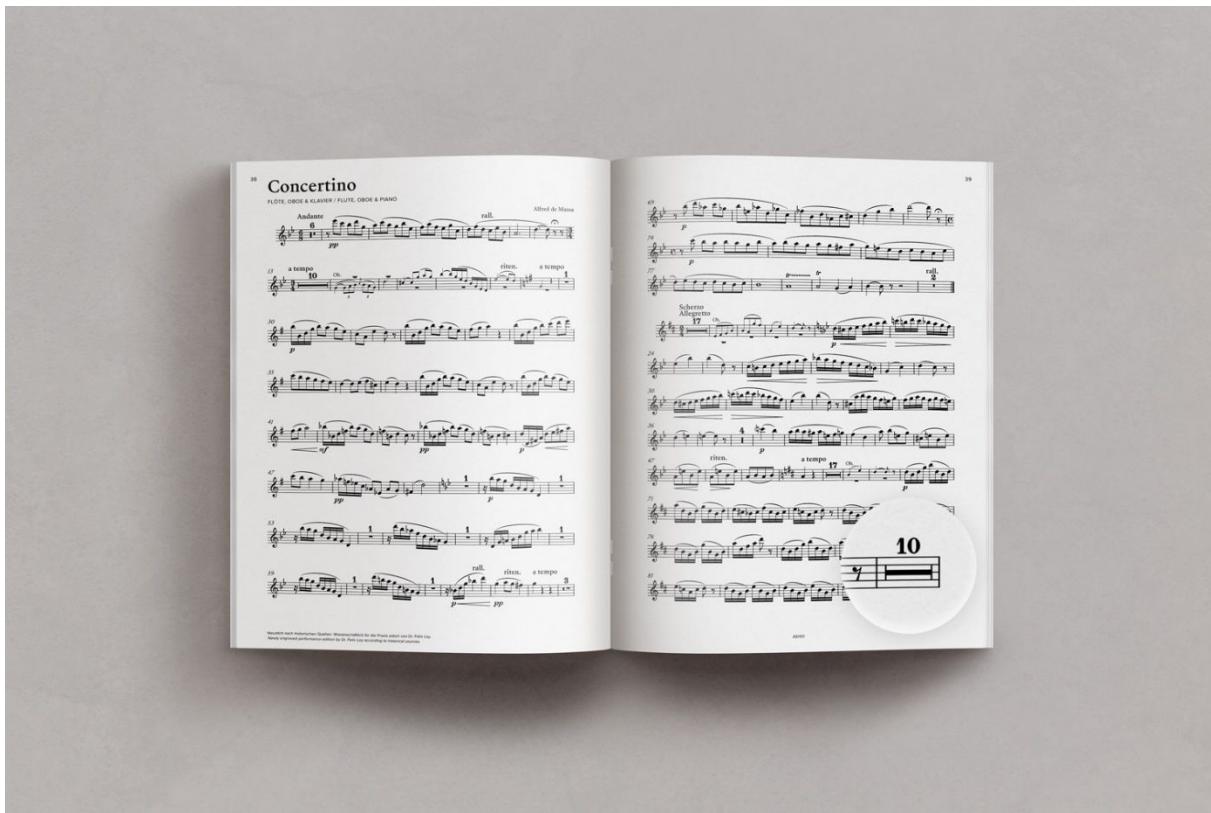

»There are still infinite treasures to be found - original works by composers from all centuries«, states Mr. Gabriel. »The pieces will inspire all people who make music, challenge their curiosity and ensure their joy of playing. It is not only artists who can benefit from our »Music Library of Inspirations«, but also the audience, who can go on a new journey of discovery in the concert hall. All over the world.«

AURIO's publications are supported by editors and musicologists invited by Mr. Gabriel to work with the publishing house, as well as by renowned artists who recommend works for an edition. AURIO has been pleased to introduce its first editions in 2020, carefully curated by German flutist Kathrin Christians, 2018 Young Artist Opus Klassik Award winner; German clarinetist Nicolai Pfeffer, who also serves on the clarinet faculty of several prestigious music schools in Germany; Spanish clarinetist Pablo Barragán, »Pablo Barragán made the clarinet shine across all registers...« (Augsburger Allgemeine); French-German cellist Nicolas Altstaedt, »one of the cello realm's most brilliant young princes« (Huffington Post); Israeli pianist Yaara Tal, half of »one of the world's best piano duos« (Stuttgarter Nachrichten) and Montenegrin guitarist Miloš. The German Pianist and »Young Steinway Artist« Maximilian Schairer, German Violinist Johanna Röhrig and Italian flutist Flavia Feudi are also AURIO ambassadors.

Australian conductor Simone Young says: »AURIO is a project that offers everyone who plays an instrument an interesting opportunity to discover unknown works and find new inspiration.«

Published bilingually in English and German, and available for subscription worldwide, each AURIO edition is lovingly set by established music notation writers who also work for other renowned music publishers. Designed to meet the high demands of musicians in every respect, the editions are printed on natural paper inspired by Japanese paper clothing (which Sebastian Gabriel selected from more than 600 paper samples), and feature a special binding which ensures that the notes remain open on the desk. The digital edition comes in PDF format and can be accessed on all end devices. For subscribers, video tutorials in German are included.

»With AURIO, I want to offer musicians a service that allows them to expand their artistic repertoire with original pieces without wasting any time. We want to inspire them and help them discover new works and composers of all musical epochs. The score in our editions is always a surprise for subscribers, we call our editions a ›treasure chest of recommendations‹. We want to be like a good friend who recommends high-quality favourite pieces for the repertoire to the musicians, puts them on their desk and says: ›Play this, it's really great and worth it!‹. The spectrum ranges from baroque to contemporary music; some curators also present their own arrangements. A ›Composer's Special‹ will feature contemporary music, we are actually looking for composers who would be interested in working with us.«
